WHSC Training ...securing compliance

Mandatory health and safety training obligations for employers have expanded significantly over the past year. And Ministry of Labour (MOL) inspectors are visiting workplaces seeking confirmation of compliance.

For instance, MOL inspectors issued almost 1,100 orders during the six month period ending January 18, 2015 calling on employers to ensure supervisors complete a health and safety awareness training program within one week of beginning work as a supervisor. They also issued more than 1,600 orders over this same period mandating employers to meet a similar obligation for worker awareness training. These new employer training obligations became law on July 1, 2014.

Employer training obligations are about to change again.

As of April 1, 2015, new requirements will come into force calling on employers to ensure untrained workers on construction projects complete a MOL-approved working at heights training program before using a fall restricting system, fall arrest system, safety net, work belt or safety belt.

Beginning June 1, 2015, employers will need to turn their attention to training or retraining workers and supervisors to comply with the GHS-related amendments to the Occupational Health & Safety Act (the Act) and WHMIS regulations. The new Globally Harmonized System of Classification and Labelling of Chemicals, commonly referred to as GHS, establishes a new globally-recognized set of rules for classifying and labelling chemicals.

These new requirements are in addition to the many other legal training obligations for employers, including:

- Joint Health & Safety Committee (JHSC) Certification (Part I & II)
- Violence and Harassment
- Confined Space Entry
- Mobile Equipment Operator Competency, and
- Supervisor Competency.

WHSC Training ...promoting prevention

As Ontario's legally designated training centre specializing in occupational health and safety, the WHSC has the programs to help your workplace comply with all of these obligations.

Forward-thinking employers though are well aware that simply meeting legislative minimums will not ensure the safety or health of workers and other workplace parties. They realize achieving compliance while promoting prevention is the key to protecting worker health. Many know WHSC training can help them achieve this important objective.

Through a hazard-based approach and proven delivery model, WHSC training programs support workplaces in their efforts to identify, assess and control, or better yet eliminate, hazardous working conditions that give rise to work-related injury, illness and death.

WHSC training is also designed to help:

- Educate workers, supervisors and employers so they understand and carry out their legal rights and duties
- Support the effectiveness of JHSCs and representatives in smaller workplaces
- Ensure operator and supervisor competency, and
- Reinforce the need for effective workplace prevention programs.

WHSC Training ...contact us today

The WHSC offers an extensive catalogue of some 200 hazard- and industry-specific training programs.

Many of the core programs required by law are scheduled in communities across Ontario and throughout the year (see inside for details).

WHSC training can also be delivered at your workplace. This option allows you to schedule delivery on your terms.

The WHSC can also customize any of our existing programs or develop training specific to the needs of your workplace.

Located across Ontario, WHSC representatives are ready to visit your workplace, help assess your training needs and arrange for cost-effective on-site or off-site training.
