ELIGIBILITY

Eligible individuals and organizations are those who work in, run, or receive services from charities, non-governmental organizations and non-profit organizations. Workplaces employing less than 50 workers also qualify.

SPECIAL PRICING

Special one-time funding from the Ministry of Labour, Immigration, Training and Skills Development allows us to offer training at a modest cost, or even at no cost in some cases, for a limited time.

The following essential programs listed here, some of which are legally required, are scheduled in in-person or virtual classes via Zoom, and available for online registrations at deep discounts. These scheduled options are ideal for training one or a few learners.

BENEFITS OF QUALITY HEALTH AND SAFETY TRAINING

As well as meeting legal training obligations, effective health and safety training can help improve working conditions. It can help:

- ▶ Workplace parties understand and carry out their legal rights and duties.
- ▶ Support the effectiveness of joint health and safety committees and representatives.
- ▶ Ensure worker and supervisor competency.
- ▶ Bolster overall workplace prevention programs.
- ▶ Reduce work-related injury, illness, and death by identifying and controlling workplace hazards.

WHAT QUALITY TRAINING LOOKS LIKE

All WHSC courses, whether delivered virtually or in-person, are led by highly qualified and experienced instructors helping to ensure critical learning is achieved. All courses are delivered using adult education techniques where highly interactive sessions ensure participants build upon their collective experiences of the workplace to devise real-world strategies for safer, healthier work.

For virtual classes, participants need access to a high-speed internet connection and a computer with a functioning camera, speakers, and microphone. To help ensure the integrity of the learning experience, smartphones are not permitted.
